IMPERIALISM.

German Voters, Thrilled by Words of the Presidential Can-Mate. Cheers Him to the Ecno.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Nov. 2.-Before great and enthusiastic meetings in Cooper Union and in Carnegle Hall, Judge Parker renewed to-night his attack upon the trusts and imperialism. Crowds followed him and waited along his route to cheer. He declared that the presidential campaign is a contest between the plain people on one side and on the other the evil forces of community, who are seeking profit from legislation, fostering extravagance and insolently disregarding the rights of Judge Parker pledged himself, if elected, to serve as the President of the whole people as their trustee, and to seek no ond term. He renewed his attack upon the "Cortelyou scandal" and closed the evening by attending a large reception in his honor at the Democratic club.

No more enthusiastic audience has greeted Judge Parker than that which filled Cooper Union. Five thousand persons, one-sixth of them women, and nearly all Germans, burst into wild applause when he appeared in the hall, and for nearly seven minutes yelled, stamped, waved flags and believed the name of the cratic standard bearer. A military hand played patriotic melodies, but it was sally that the strains could be heard above the roar of the multitude. More spontaneous and carnes never filled the big auditorium. ous and earnest cheering

The first burst of applause came when Carl Schurs appeared on the platform with Herman Ridder. The audience beered for three minutes. When, near the close of his speech, Judge Parker turned toward General Schurz, praised him for his service to his adopted country, and grasped his hand, the throng cheered to the echo.

During his address Judge Parker was interrupted by applause frequently. At the opening his voice was clear and strong, but as he continued it weakened slightly. There was no time, though, when he could not be heard in every part of the hall.

A dispute arising over the payment of a petty amount on the rent of a suite of rooms at the Hotel Loring, a World's Fair rooming-house, No. 4217 West Belle place, resulted in the shooting and death yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock of the proprietor, Hayden Y. Loring, son of Judge James M. Loring of this city, by Norman M. Vaughan, son of Judge Walter R. Vaughan, several times Mayor of Council Bluffs, Ia., prominent in New York City and Washington society and a second cousin of Archbishop Vaughan of England.

After the deed Vaughan caimly walked out the front door, went to a neighbor's, iwo doors away, spoke with his sister, Miss Delia Vaughan, stepped through the house, where some of the World's Fair visitors were at breakfast, and boarded a clean breast of the whole affair to his father's friend, John H. Holmes, exalted ruler of the Elks. Upon the advice of Holmes, Vaughan surrendered to the authorities, Captain O'Malley of the Tenth District Station dispatching Special Officers Dennis O'Connell and Michael Stanton to bring the prisoner to the station-house.

Here Vaughan retold the story, declaring he did the deed in self-defense, and that, under the same time professing sorrow at the necessity of being forced to shoot Loring.

Loring was dying when they arrived and Vaughan had walked out of the front door.

Vaughan gave the following account of the shooting in his cell at the Tenth Distruct Station last night:

"I acted in self-defense. I am sorry that I was forced to use the revolver. It was a 32-caliber make. Loring was a much larger man than I am and I feared that he meant to do me harm. He struck me on the left side of the face once with his fist and had reached to his hip pocket once, and this is what caused me to draw my revolver out of the drawer and shoot.

It is directly opposite the door of my sister's room on the ground floor. My mother and two sisters were with me. We were on our way to breakfast in the house two doors away, where all of the Loring boarders eat their meals.

"You owe me $1.60 on that bill," said Loring.

"I paid the total amount to your secretary, less the amount of the deduction which you promised to cut off if the rent was paid in advance, I replied.

"My little sister stood between us. She looked up at Loring and anked him to stop. He swung at me over her head and struck me on the face. I was backing away from him and toward my room. As I got to the door I saw the pistol lying in the top drawer. I grabbed it and shot at Loring five times."

When Loring was shot he tried to run toward the kitchen, but staggered as he reached the door, failing back into the hallway. When his brother arrived the wounded man was writhing in agony and gasping, "Tm shot, Doc!"

Chairman Niedringhaus of State Committee Undertakes to Prove Democracy of Men Deprived of Commissions.

Circumstances and facts as stated by officials who are in a position to know seem to make undeniable the statement that Thomas K. For some time past it has been rumored in the Third Ward that more than a few of those who had heretofore been counted among the strong workers and supporters of the Democratic ticket would be found at the approaching election assisting the Republicans. This, with other charges caused the Board of Election Commissioners in session last Friday to revoke the commissions of thirty-six of the Democratic judges and clerks in that ward. orratic judges and cierks in that ward.

On the following day, Saturday, the secretary of the Election Commissioners received a telephonic communication from Losis Aloc, the Republican member of the board, asking for the names of the judges and clearks who had been removed. By direction of James McCaffery, president of the commission, this request was refused.

direction of James McCaffery, president of the commission, this request was refused.

On the following Tuesday Mr. Aloe appeared in person at a meeting of the commission and again demanded a list of the judges and clerks who had been deprived of their commissions, stating that he did so by the request of Thomas K. Niedringhaus, chairman of the Republican State Committee. This request was made to President McCaffery. On the same day a letter was received from James C. Jones, a member of the legal firm of Jones, Jones & Hocker, with offices in the Laclede building, which was as follows, dated at St. Louis on November I, and addressed to the members of the Eoard of Election Commissioners;

"Gentlemen: Representing the Democratic judges and cierks of election in the several precincts of the Third Ward, I beg to request that you furnish me by bearer a list of the judges and cierks in said ward whom you have undertaken to remove, together with a copy of any resolution or order purporting to remove said judges or cierks."

Upon the same day the Election Commissioners; rescinded the order revoking the commissions of the judges and cierks in question pending a legal opinion from city Counselor Eates, who on the following day submitted an opinion in writing that the law provided that the judges and cierks should be notified and that they be given a chance to appear before the commission before action was taken by the latter, and the whole matter rest at that point and no further steps will be taken until the work incident to the registration is concluded.

President McCaffery yesterday stated that indications point to the fact that the Republican State Committee is taking an altogether too active interest in the welfare of the Democratic judges and clorks of election.

John Wesley Moulder Threatens to Cancel Will Bequeathing His Clothes to Albert Smith.

Failure on the part of Albert Smith, a patient at the St. Louis City Hospital, to pray for the recovery of John Wesley Moulder from the effects of an operation, according to the terms of an agreement made by the men, under which Smith was made by the men, under which Smith was to get a suit of clothes if Moulder dies, probably will cancel the will, as Smith yesterday grew lax in keeping his promise to pray for Moulder.

Since undergoing the operation, by which a section of skin taken from his arm was grafted into a cavity in his forehead, Moulder has been confined to Ward No. 15 in the hospital. Smith would pay visits to the man for whom he had promised to pray at intervals during the day. To show Moulder that he was keeping his part of the contract Smith would pray the whole time spent at Moulder's bedside. Yesterday Smith did not pay his accus-tomed visit to Moulder and it was noticed by the doctors who are treating Moulder that he grew exceedingly restless and his fewer results.

Smith was accordingly sent for and brought to Moulder's bed.

"Smith," the sick man said, "you ain't praying right. Why haven't you been up here to see me? Have you quit praying? Does the love of that suit make you wish me to die?

"Moulder," said Smith, "I tried hard to pray and did pray a day and a half, but every time I got to praying that suit would come up in my mind and stop my mouth. I'm going to try to do better though, and, besides, one day don't make very much difference any way."

Moulder was plainly disturbed.

"Smith," he said, "I'm pretty nearly in the notion of taking back that will, and if I hear of your failing to pray another time I will take it back."

Smith made many promises to start praying again and said that he thought he could do it.

Moulder's condition is much improved.
